Restored Runic Manuscript, A must have.By Paul WilsonThis is a full color copy of the manuscript but most of the ravages of time have been removed and it was rebuild and compiled to this version we see here. I think it's pretty neat to have a copy of a 13th century book, especially one written only in runes. This is a great conversation piece, and there is a key in the back if you want to decode it.

The Codex Runicus was written in medieval runes in the 13th century which includes the oldest preserved Nordic provincial law, Scanian Law (Skinske lov) pertaining to the Danish land Scania (Skneland).
