From Hart Publishing : Cross-Border EU Competition Law Actions (Hart Studies in Competition Law) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Cross-Border EU Competition Law Actions (Hart Studies in Competition Law):

This book, written within the framework of a research project funded by the European Commission Civil Justice Program, identifies the ways in which cross-border EU competition law actions can be best handled in Europe. Employing traditional library-based, legal research methods - as well as qualitative interviews with legal practitioners in Germany and England (countries sharing different legal traditions) and policy-makers in Brussels - the book considers how private EU competition law actions are functioning at the moment and how they could and should be developed. The study proposes solutions for some of the most pressing practical problems, and includes contributions by academics, legal practitioners, and judges. (Series: Hart Studies in Competition Law - Vol. 4)

This collective volume provides an excellent contribution to this literature. This is not your common edited volume, which most often constitutes the publication of some conference proceedings. It is the result of a research project undertaken by the editors with the involvement of academics and legal practitioners. This short review notice cannot of course do justice to an extremely rich collection of essays, both in terms of the information provided and new ideas explored. ...the volume covers all the important aspects of cross-border EU competition law actions and could be of use for both the academic and the practitioner crowds. (Ioannis Lianos World Competition Law and Economics , Volume 37, Issue 2)...an extremely interesting and thought-provoking book. (Riccardo Sciaudone European Competition Law )
