Burton Milward : Louisville's Legendary Lawyer: Frank E. Haddad, Jr. before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Louisville's Legendary Lawyer: Frank E. Haddad, Jr.:

This 448-page book presents first-hand accounts of the life and work of the legendary lawyer Frank E. Haddad, Jr. It preserves for future generations an accurate sense of the kind of man Haddad was, the way he lived and worked. It informs readers, in an entertaining way, about one of the greatest criminal defense lawyers in America. The book includes autobiographical, biographical, historical, and oral history accounts about many important criminal cases, legal institutions, judges and lawyers, and friends and associates along the way. As Frank Haddad often said, "It's been a pleasure being here, and good luck to everybody!"

About the Author Burton Milward, Jr., the author/editor of Louisville's Legendary Lawyer, graduated from Transylvania University and the University of Kentucky College of Law. He is the author of several law books, including Kentucky Criminal Practice (Banks-Baldwin, Cleveland 1984), Reversible Error in Kentucky Criminal Cases (Harrison, Norcross, Georgia 1987), and Frank Haddad: His Classic Closing Arguments (Total Victory Press, Louisville 1995). His essay "Kentucky's First Poet" appeared in The Kentucky, IX: 1, in Spring 1989, followed by The Kentucky Miscellany, by Thomas Johnson, Jr., A Facsimile of the Fourth Edition 1821, published as University of Kentucky Libraries Occasional Papers Number 11 in 1995. He coauthored with Burton Milward, Sr., both Reminiscences of "Aunt" Betty Hummons: Lexington During the Civil War (Larkspur Press, Monterey, Kentucky, 1999), and "The 1851 Bird's-Eye View of Lexington: Three Versions," in The Kentucky, XV: 2, in 2003. He edited "Kate White Adams Milward's Recollections of Her Early Years," in Kentucky Ancestors, 42: 1 (Autumn 2006). Burton Milward, Jr. worked for many years as trial assistant and chief of legal research for Frank E. Haddad, Jr.
