Implementation of Prison Ombudsmen: Comparative Analysis of the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman for England and Wales and the ... (Schriften zur Kriminalwissenschaft):

Prison ombudsmen are charged with investigating claims of injustice and breaches of human rights within the total institutions of the penal system. This book comprehensively explains which needs these institutions were intended to meet, why they spread around the globe and how their proliferation determined their implementation. Using a grounded theory approach, the author examines one subject each from both the common and civil law world. The result is a detailed analysis of the acute impact of pressure on cross-fertilization processes involving human rights-sensitive penal institutions.

About the Author Sabine Carl, born in Munich, studied law at the Freie Universität Berlin (Germany). In 2010, she was awarded a research scholarship by the Hanns-Seidel-Stiftung. During the research for her doctoral thesis she published original articles on ombudsmen in both German and English.
